

Researcher

Bearstone Global is a business intelligence and investigation firm with offices in Berlin, Warsaw and London. We provide investigative research and analytical services to a range of clients including law firms, private equity firms, banks, and other investigative firms.

We provide a range of services, including due diligence, background checks, litigation support, compliance investigations and cyber investigations. We use an extensive worldwide network of associates to gather strategically actionable intelligence to help our clients make well-informed business decisions.

We are in the process of expanding our network of analysts and researchers and are looking for contractors who would be able to conduct open source research on a freelance basis.

Your profile:

- Excellent command of professional-level written English. Multiple languages are a major asset, while their absence is not a deal-breaker
- Detail-oriented with excellent organization and time-management skills
- Passionate about investigations and research
- Any researcher, academic or journalist background would be a major asset

Our offer:

- Exciting and interesting research projects
- Training on the methodology if necessary
- Regular interactions with and support from our project managers
- Attractive project-based fees
